

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

5 A lidar detection system comprises a CCD sensor for converting a returned light signal into electrical charges that are amplified at the output of the sensor itself with no significant noise and without it being necessary to accumulate the results of a plurality of firings to obtain sufficient signals.